Waste Technologies

Hazardous Waste Incineration

High-temperature incineration offers efficient and complete destruction of hazardous wastes and the capability to deal with a wide variety of such materials. Additionally, destruction in high temperature incinerators has been determined by EPA to be the Best Available Technology for most organic hazardous wastes. This is because incineration safely and effectively destroys all hazardous constituents in the waste, reducing environmental liabilities.

High-temperature incineration systems are very flexible and can accommodate virtually any type of waste. Strong offers incineration services that are matched to the materials and specific needs you may have, including contaminated process wastewaters, soils, solids, residues from chemical processing, oils, spent flammable solvents, paint residues, and chemical spill cleanup.

Technologies

Strong offers state-of-the-art incineration systems, including rotary kilns, fixed-hearth incineration technology, and fluidized bed technology.

Witnessed Destruction

Strong is a registered DEA Reverse Distributor, as well as an experienced provider of hazardous waste services. Strong manages disposal of all types of controlled substances, including mixed DEA/RCRA waste. For waste that requires witnessed destruction, Strong performs complete observation of the receipt, storage and incineration process. We perform these services for both government and private sector clients.
